WEDDING WIDENS SEMON SMILE

DOROTHY DWAN AND LARRY SEMON.
Film favorite to be married in New York tomorrow after a courtship of eight months. When Larry first met Dorothy he decided she was the only girl in the world for him. Since their first meeting the two screen stars have played many leads together during which Larry's initial impressions were strengthened.

'PACE TOO DIZZY AND PRICE TOO GREAT'

This is the last installment of the life story of Dorothy Ellington, written for Country Week by Dorothy Ellington herself. What were the influences in her life which turned her from a rather unusually intelligent schoolgirl into a musicalist?

San Francisco, Jan. 21.—I don't like to think about certain parts of that wild life I led after I got to going to the jazz cafes.

It frightens me now, and whenever I get close to think of it, I remember going home and being afraid to face my mother. I couldn't be fit to raise my head and look her in the eyes. It seemed to me that she just couldn't help knowing that I had been doing wrong.

But I guess mothers are silly when it comes to their children. Mother never seemed to fear that wrong things had happened, she was just afraid they would happen. My father and brother didn't say much. They never seemed to take much interest in me.

FATHER'S TEMPER.
I had his temper, they tell me, and I guess I have shown it. There are a lot of unpleasant things that I can't tell in this story. There are things I would like to tell other girls against. My name is gone now anyway, and I really would like to tell other young girls how to beware of the pitfalls.

I don't think it started altogether in the cafes. I think it all started when I was fourteen years old and used to play hockey from school, and loved to think that I was losing the teachers.

I started to tell the about school and where I had been. I thought it was smart to make up all kinds of stories. I think that's when I started on my way. That was the beginning and then afterwards came the jazz cafes.

"There are lots of places in San Francisco where a girl can go and be a star," I thought.

In Chinatown, out at North Beach, out at Ocean Beach, a girl can always find some fellow who is ready to say her way. I could anywhere. And it was easy to do it. Just a little bit of the eyebrows and that was that. Men are easy, after all. You're young and not almost fifteen or six too smart for them or just smart enough to make them think you are a fool.

EXPECT TO BE PAID.
They don't care who you are or what you are. All they want is a little kiss and they'll pay for your time and you can dance all night and go out to the beach and see life anyway you want to, but of course they expected you to be a good fellow, so they said it.

And you can't draw the line at anything—not with men like that. They're paying your way and they expect you to do your part, too.

By this time I began to think it was foolish to work.

Why work? Why not let the men work and give me a good time? There are seventeen names in my little diary, they tell me.

Seventeen! That's not very many. Why I've known seven times as many men in the last six months.

And out of those seventeen I don't know all these men intimately at all. Some of them were just fellows I met and I put their names and addresses down. I didn't know when they might be a drill sergeant and I knew a lot of names so that I could call one of the boys up.

KEITH HER SWEETHEART.
Keith was my sweetheart and I expected to marry him some day. Harry was my first "case" and they made me swear to warrants against both of them. I don't think they meant to hurt me. They thought I was sixteen years old and knew my own business.

But now Keith has gone back on me. He says he wants to marry a Venice girl. So I wasn't really sorry when they asked me to have him arrested.

I didn't really love him. I never really loved any one and I don't believe any one ever really loved me. I don't see much in this love business, I must say. I can't see that it gets any one very far, any more.

I was out for fun. I thought when I started to write this story about my life there would be lots to say.

There isn't.

I have crammed a whole life story

Screen's Champion of Laugh Getters Weds Beautiful Dorothy Dwan Tomorrow

New York, Jan. 21.—Larry Semon, one of the leading laugh producers of the screen was doing the smiling himself when he announced that he had won beautiful Dorothy Dwan. They will be married tomorrow.

The famous Semon smile was twice as wide when he broke the news, which means it reached his back color better. He has found "the one woman that represents the complete."

Miss Dwan, otherwise Miss Dorothy Smith, daughter of Colonel George Smith, who died as the result of gas suffered in the World War, was virtually "discovered" by Semon for the time when he picked her picture out of a moving picture magazine showing a group of sailors who had played leads with him—and will continue to do so, it would seem.

They met about twelve years ago. Dorothy still wrote to New York from Hollywood early in the morning. Those to the Lorraine Hotel, and the Little Church Around the Corner, after which the "Sole will give Larry's act at the Palace Theatre, where he is dragging down the biggest salaries money ever paid a single performer.

SOUTH END MAN HELD IN MERCHANDISE THEFT

With the arrest today of Peter (Ala. centric) of No. 17 Oak street, South End, police of La. grange street station claim to have cleared up every burglary that has occurred in their district since January 1.

At the home of Kail Neat, No. 18 Haver street, Quincy, police recovered about $100 worth of the merchandise. Kail told them that Salah brought the goods to his home.

PROSECUTOR TO ASK U. S. TO GIVE UP CHAPMAN

Harford, Ct., Jan. 21.—State Attorney Hugh M. Allen, armed with a first degree murder indictment against Gerald Chapman, will leave today for Washington for a conference with Colonel William J. Donovan, Assistant Attorney General, to effect the transfer of the notorious rubber from Federal jurisdiction to the custody of this State to make possible the trial of Chapman for the murder of Policeman James Kelly of New Britain.

Arrangements for the conference were made independently of the act that of the Grand Jury in returning the Chapman indictment. It was paid for by the State, who added that he had not formally notified the Attorney General's office of the result of the jury proceedings.

Salary Revision Upward Urged on School Board

Same Rating for Men and Women Teachers Also Recommended by "Salary Council" in Report

A substantial increase in the maximum salary of Boston school teachers, a uniform raise of $144 yearly for both men and women, and the recommendation of women as "teachers" — not "assistant teachers" — are highlights of recommendations placed before the school committee by the "salary" council, following the disclosure that Boston salaries are the lowest among fifteen cities.

For men teachers, the council recommends a raise of $144 yearly, from $2,124 to $2,268. For women teachers, the council recommends a raise of $144 yearly, from $1,980 to $2,124. The council also recommends that women be rated as "teachers" instead of "assistant teachers."

'Looney Gas' Can Be Used in New York if Mixed

Albany, Jan. 21. — Gasoline treated with tetraethyl lead, or "looney gas," may be sold in New York State, but sale of the "looney gas" itself is barred from public distribution, it was ruled at a meeting of the state health board here, "looney gas" in its pure commercial form recently caused mental disorders and consequent deaths of several workmen in a production plant in New Jersey. It is used in motor car fuel to increase power and eliminate knocks.

City Hall. In desperation they called Portland on the telephone. "I'll write my permission to the health board right away," was the prompt response from the mother. "And what's more, I'll be down for the wedding."

The written permission is expected at City Hall within the next few days. It will likely be delayed somewhat by the storm, but it is expected to arrive in time to permit the young couple to be married next Monday.

CHARACTER SHOWN BY TILT OF HAT

By DR. FRANK CRANE

SOMEONE has discovered that the character of a person can be determined by the tilt of his hat.

Personally, in a cap I feel like a working man, in a stiff derby I am like a groom, and in a soft hat, which is called a Homburg, I might be mistaken for a burglar or a detective.

Hats are commonly supposed to be put on to keep the head warm, but this hardly applies to women's hats and to many of the men's hats. They are put on merely to keep in style and because the habit has grown upon us.

Certain it is that at present a man does not feel well dressed unless he has a hat on of some kind. It is also certain that the removing of the hat and uncovering of the head is a gesture of politeness that most women insist upon.

BOSTON AMERICAN

THE LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION IN THE EAST

There had to be pioneers, but the winter sports vacation idea has grown with the years until an important part of the East comes here for fun, health and healthful exercise.

Enthusiastic Minute Men Find Winter Sports Among New England's Best Assets

SOME DAY we shall know the name of the Minute Man who first suggested turning the New England Winter into an asset.

One of these days there will be a monument erected to his memory, but there is plenty of time to be thinking about that, for the gentleman is still young and he will live to be one hundred years old, at least.

He must have been somebody who had spent a Winter or two in the South, and who had missed, as only the healthy Northerner can miss, such invigorating sports as:

- Skiing
- Skating
- Snowshoeing
- Tobogganing
- Ice-fishing
- Ice-boat sailing
- Sailing on lakes

And the scores of other recreational activities which are to be found at their best in Northern New England.

Although he had a good idea, and although he must have given himself, heart and soul, to its promotion, the pioneer had a hard time of it.

His friends laughed at him. "Sell New England in Winter?" they said to him, "you're crazy, man! WHO cares for snow? WHO wants ice? Brrrrr! Gives a fellow the chills, merely to think of it. Come in and pull a chair up to the fire."

But the gentleman persisted, as pioneers have a way of doing. He went with his idea to the railroads, not so ready to listen to new ideas as they are today, perhaps, and he called upon some of the more enterprising of the hotel men.

The railroads showed some interest, not much in the very beginning, but more and more with each Winter. Except in one or two notable instances in Maine and New Hampshire the hotel men, however, were shy. Those of them who had grown up in the industry had been trained to think in terms of New England in Summer and Florida in Winter. They were the owners or managers of hotels in both places.

The editors of sport pages were only a little more enthusiastic. They were willing to take the thing up, but they wanted to be shown that there was a real public interest to be served.

From a situation no more encouraging than has been indicated, Winter sports in New England have moved forward year by year until today they call the vacationist from twenty States, provide passengers for the railroads, bring guests to the progressive hotel man who knows how to encourage such a promising and profitable business, introduce new customers to dealers in sports clothing and sports accessories, and altogether contribute materially to the general prosperity of the community.

They do say that when Fred Harris began gliding around Hanover on skis not only the student body, but the townspeople, used to turn out to laugh.

How long ago was that?
Only fifteen years.

Harris was a member of the class of 1911. Until his day Winter was looked upon as the one bane of existence in life at Dartmouth. Harris helped to make it a season of joy. He was the founder and first president of the Dartmouth Outing Club, which will hold its fourteenth annual carnival on the 6th, 7th and 8th of February. Carnival Week will be the BIG week of the Winter at Hanover.

Everywhere in the North Country, as well as at Massachusetts points like Winchendon and Williamstown, the Winter carnival has, in recent years, attained the dignity of a fixture. Chambers of Commerce are interested, and when the secretary of a New England chamber of commerce is interested in a proposition he is interested and the undertaking usually is made to pay.

The railroads, which now have publicity men and advertising experts on their staffs, and treat them with all the courtesy and attention given in other days to third and fourth vice-presidents, go after Winter business as strenuously and as intelligently as they seek new business in the Summer season.

SNOW BABIES: "AIN'T WE GOT FUN!"

Can Florida show anything better than the husky youngsters on the toboggan? Can Florida produce even the toboggan? And where can the South assemble anything like this fleet of ice-boats, photographed at Vinalhaven, Maine? Come out and get your share of a glorious Winter!

There is not, to be sure, any such call upon the hotels as there is in mid-Summer, but Poland Spring, Bar Harbor, Bethel, Kingfield and resorts in the Rangeley, Moosehead and Belgrade sections of Maine are open and in New Hampshire the visitor is assured of a good table, a cosy room, a warm welcome and a blazing fire in some of the better hotels of Conway, North Conway, Jackson, Keamsburg and Intervale.

There are men in New England who admit a strong liking for tennis and golf and swimming, but who would gladly sacrifice all three for skiing, skating and coasting.

There are bankers among them, and brokers, and doctors and lawyers. When the white flakes are late in coming to the city, these devotees haul out their skis and are off for the North Station and the White Mountains.

To enthusiasts like these, the big event of the present week will be the dog-sled race at Newport, N. H., the day after tomorrow. Among the competing teams there will be two belonging to Cambridge girls whose families for many years have spent their Summers in the vicinity of Wonalancet and Chocorua.

The race will be over a twenty-mile circuit and about two hours will be taken to cover the course.

The Cambridge girls are Miss Clara Enebuske of Garden street and Miss Caryl Peabody, daughter of the curator of European archeology at Peabody Museum.

Becoming interested in dog-sled racing as it is practiced at Wonalancet, the girls persuaded their parents to permit them a Winter's vacation at the sport. They have found dog-sled racing the hardest kind of work, but they finally have brought their troublesome charges into perfectly functioning dog-teams and the experience has brought them such compensations as could not have been found in the pleasures of the city.

Winter in the New England country, these young people and many older folk declare, "makes you glad you are alive."

And that, substantially, is the message the New England Minute Man should broadcast throughout the land.

Bathing, boating, fishing, and the other sports that go with Summer?

WE have them.

But WE ALSO have the sports that belong to Winter.

And who else has THEM?

The railroads are right. The hotel men are right. The sporting editors are right. New England ought to "bear down" on her Winter attractiveness.

The next time YOU send a postal-card, make it a WINTER postal-card. Pick out an "action" picture, like that of the little tobogganists shown on this page. Or, select a skating picture, or a sleighing picture. Not a "still" picture, showing a deserted country road at 3 p. m., with a chilly suggestion of death and taxes and no fire in the house, but a picture alive with the JOY OF LIVING.

Send a picture like that to your friends in Florida and California and let them know what they are missing.

Snowshoeing, a heritage from the American Indian, plays an important part in the sports program of each of the New England resorts. Skiing, which originated centuries ago in Norway, has become exceedingly popular. For some reason or other, it is still peculiarly the pastime of the young in these parts, although in Norway the sport knows no age limit.

Sleighing, tobogganing and coasting hold the attention of old and young alike. Rivers and lakes in many places have been turned into speedways. On Wilson Pond in Keene, in Opechee Park at Concordia and on the North Main street speedway in Rochester the owners of trotters and pacers stage at least one matinee each week.

Added to the sports programs is the natural charm of the Winter resort beside the glow and warmth of a blazing fire. The warmth and cheer within are rivalled only by the clear and exhilarating air without.

Impromptu concerts, dancing, candy popcorn parties, story telling, bridge, mah jong, the evening amusements are exactly those best adapted to the environment. Or there are sleighing or ski or snowshoe expeditions to a hall some miles away for a box luncheon and a dance.

If you have never gone coasting, tobogganing, snowshoeing or skiing by torch or moonlight now is the time to try it. Snow, ice, crisp and invigorating air and sunshine are peculiar to no resort, but are to be enjoyed all over northern New England.

The Appalachian Mountain Club goes from Boston to the White Mountains for its annual pilgrimage and snowshoe trips through the Crawford Notch, to the summit of Mount Washington and other peaks of the Presidential Range.

The Rotary Club and the Boston Chamber of Commerce annually make up parties for a few Winter days in the white hills.

For more than a decade the students of the sell Seminary at Auburnville have enjoyed outdoor life and Winter sports in the mountains.

Not so many years ago, the number of Winter visitors to Switzerland was 500,000, and Switzerland is but half the size of Maine. Her "hills" may be higher, but there are not so many of them. St. Moritz has found a place as fashion's Winter capital of the world because St. Moritz early learned how to call attention to its offerings. And what ARE those offerings? Nothing more than what you can find in twenty communities, three, four or five hours from Boston.

It is well to call attention to these facts. It is the duty of New England Minute Men to do so. It will do no great harm if New England put herself on the back occasionally.

Let us learn something from the vaudeville performer, the well-known politician, the modern author, each of whom understands so well the great value of keeping his name before the public.

Nowhere else in the world is there anything quite like a New England Winter. What would one of the breezy young Western States do with such a monopoly? It would not, we may be sure, look upon Winter as a liability, but would regard it as an ASSET.

Join the multitude who are finding health and fun in a week-end in the country. Try organizing a snowshoe picnic. Have a taste of camping in the snow. Help yourself to an adventure with the scooter, or the thrills that go with skate-sailing.

Meet Mr. Winter, the celebrated Snow Man. Behind a somewhat frosty exterior he conceals a heart of gold.

Not a bad fellow at all, when you come to know him, and, oh, folks, WHAT a plunger for New England he is!

Boost WITH him.

Tell the outlander about him. Never mind if you DO create a bit of envy. It MAY turn to longing.

Use the picture postcard method, or such letter ones as will suggest themselves.

Tell all the world how Winter in New England "makes you glad you are alive!"

TODAY, the Bar Association of the State of Ohio will take to a speech by Max D. Rosen, a New York lawyer, one of the most powerful lawyers in the United States, will make a speech worth while. Ohio lawyers and law students are advised to hear him if they can.

MR. STREETER will probably talk about things that interest lawyers. He, or some other lawyer, should make a speech about American justice as it affects the little man. Any undisciplined lawyer, Mr. Rosen or anybody else, will tell you this.

If an ordinary American citizen, without any poll, had a very loud voice for $10,000, and a big claim, that citizen with the loud voice would be a foot to take his claim into court. It would cost him more than $10,000 to get a suit. And, besides, spending more than his claim was worth, he would go through law-breaking days.

The courts of the United States are not made for poor men, which doesn't seem exactly right, under a government which is supposed to represent people of all kinds.

NEW YORK reformers, earnest, sincere, demand drastic new laws. They would limit all public activities on Sunday strictly to church services. No golf, no baseball, no moving picture or theatre, only church, Sunday school and piety meditation.

THE PLAN is well meant, also foolish. Nothing would hurt churches more than an attempt at compulsory church services. They had a law in New York State once against exhibiting flowers in any window or bower. But the time for the law has passed.

Reformers should study a wise statement by a learned Frenchman in the time of Louis XIV, a poet wrote to him about his plan to stop peasants dancing and drinking on Sunday afternoon. The bishop wrote to the poet, "I'm not a good example, write from foolishness yourself, but let the poor dance, and forget their misery."

THE REV. DR. SCHAEFFER, of the Lutheran Church, says this country is the "most civilized nation of the civilized world," in his failure to provide religious day schools for public school children.

THAT is NOT the opinion of a people of this country, generally. They have confidence in their public schools. They believe that reading, writing and arithmetic can be taught as well as in religious day schools. They respect the rights of fathers and mothers to maintain and send their children to religious day schools if they choose, at their own expense.

TO ATTACK the public school is to do no greater service to the public schools than to emphasize religious teaching. Such attacks are not popular and will encourage equally unjust attacks on religious schools and religious teaching.

THIS WORLD grows gentler, even with one-half of the world's area, labelled "Russia," on the map. The Bolsheviks have driven Trotsky from power and are now in the hands of the army and in the hands of the media on his foot, but he saved his head.

IN THE FRENCH revolution, they would have told him what they thought at the foot of the guillotine and would have been a few minutes later.

WHAT A CHANCE Trotsky had when Lenin died, leaving him with the army under his belt and a few minutes later.
